

The ‘trumpet lark’ was sighted in Greenland for the first time. It is trying to defy climatic challenges and drive out established species.

Ornithologists puzzled: new bird species discovered on Greenland